Armagh and Longford renew hurling league rivalry

The appealing Allianz National Hurling League Division III final brings Armagh and Longford into opposition for the second time in this season's competition.

In their first meeting at Fay Park in late February the goal scoring flair of Gerard Enright, Martin King and Ciaran Christy proved decisive in earning the Orchard County a 3-11 to 1-12 win.

That was Armagh's initial appearance of the season and they went on to top the five team Division III "B" table with the perfect record.

The Orchard County followed up that programme with a very workman like display when comfortably seeing off the challenge of Louth in the semi-final at Castleblayney two week ago.

They were well on the road to the final at the interval when they held a commanding 2-8 to 0-3 lead. Armagh continued to maintain the momentum after the change of ends and finished comfortable winners by 3-13 to 0-8.

Centre half forward Declan Coulter made an outstanding contribution to the success by scoring 1-7.

This was another efficient performance by the Ulster side, who impressed as a well-drilled team, well served in all departments.

Longford opened their campaign with a big win over Cavan at Ballyconnell. Then came that set-back against Armagh, but they have recovered well in the meantime.

They won their remaining two games in the divisional series and two weeks ago edged home by a point against Donegal in their semi-final at Kingspan Breffni Park.

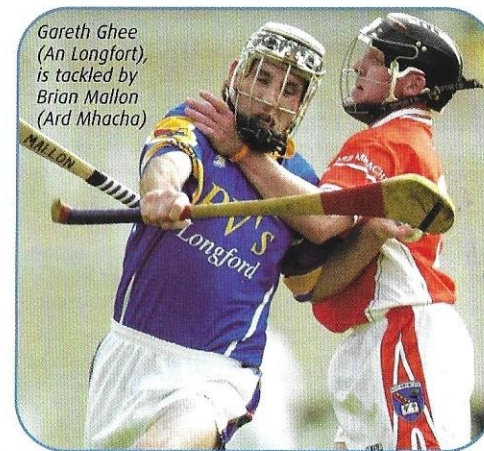

Competition was very keen throughout. The teams were on level terms at 0-5 each at the break and the sides were on level terms four times after the change of ends.

However, Longford has somewhat the better of matters in the closing stages to get through by 0-13 to 1-9.

Gareth Ghee, who has been consistently on the scoring target this season, again underlined his finishing technique by chalking up a superb 0-10.

Mark Cassidy in attack and Robbie Stakelum at right half back were other stars for the winners.

So, both teams have had much to encourage them, since their last meeting in February and look capable of providing a close encounter with spirited passages of good hurling.

Gareth Ghee (An Longford), is tackled by Brian Mallon (Ard Mhacha)

AN RÉITEOIR Declan Magee (An Dún)

Declan was on All-Ireland championship duty earlier this year when he took charge of the Erin's Own (Carlow)-Skehana (Galway) junior club semi-final at Banagher.

He is a member of the Killclief club and is a former hurler with the Down junior side. He also won one intermediate and two junior club medals as a forward.

Declan made his inter-county refereeing debut at an Allianz League game between Armagh and Leitrim in Keady in 2003.

He has been on duty already this year in the Allianz League.

Armagh and Longford LAST FEBRUARY'S MEETING

Armagh 3-11 Longford 1-12

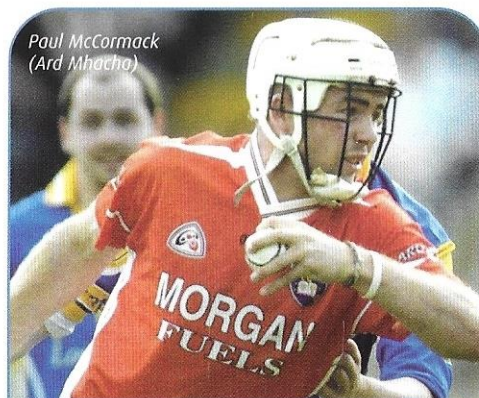

A 16-point thumping of Cavan wasn't the ideal preparation as Longford prepared to host Armagh and so it proved as the Orchard county emerged with a five-point victory. Twelve months previously Longford had defeated Armagh by 3-10 to 2-10, but the Ulster side progressed through the top section while the Leinster outfit had to be content with winning the Shield competition. And the adage goals win games was never truer in this head-to-head as majors from Gerard Enright, Martin King and Ciarán Christy decided the issue.

Armagh scorers: D.Coulter 0-6, C.Christy 1-2, M.King 1-1, G.Enright 1-0, P.McCormack 0-2.

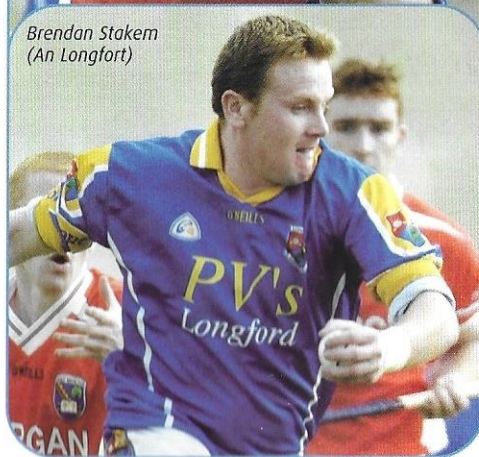

Longford scorers: G.Ghee 0-6, J.Newman 0-3, A.Corcoran 1-0, S.Browne 0-1, R.Stakelum 0-1, B.Stakelum 0-1.

AR AIS DO BHABHTA A DÓ

Ní bheidh leisce ar bith ar éinne a bhí i láthair do chluiche na seachtaine seo chaite fillleadh inniu don athimirt. Sár-choimhlint a bhí ann : imríodh peil den scoth agus tá lucht leanta na peile ag súil le haicsean an tsamhraidh nuair a bheidh na foirne seo ar thóir duais eile.

Bhí an lámh in uachtar ag fir Eamonn McEnaney sa chéad leath an lá faoi dheireadh ach níor chaill laochra Thír Chonaill an misneach agus léirigh siad go bhfuil mianach faoi leith iontu nuair a tháinig siad ar ais sa chluiche tar éis bheith seacht gcúilíní chun deiridh ag leath ham.

Tháinig Adrian Sweeney chun páirce sa dara leath agus bhí tionchur oll-mhór aige a chúrsaí. D'aimsigh sé ceithre chúilíní agus is dócha go mbeidh sé ar an bpáirc ó thús an chluiche um thráthnóna. Má bhíonn Karl Lacey ar ais freisin beidh sé deacair Na Conallaigh a chloí an bhabhta seo.

Tá an-dul chun cinn déanta ag foireann Lú i mbliana faoi stiúir Eamonn McEnaney. Níor chaill siad ach cluiche amháin sa Sraith reatha agus léirigh siad go bhfuil scil, comhimirt agus féin-mhuinín sa bhfoireann seo. Is féidir leo na cúl a aimsiú freisin – d'aimsigh Aaron Hoey, Mark Stanfield agus Martin Farrelly ceann an duine an tseachtain seo chaite.

Níl amhras ná go mbeidh fonn ar an dá fhoireann cluiche an lae inniu a bhuachaint agus corn a thabhairt abhaile leo dá lucht leanúna. Os rud é, áfach, go mbeidh fir Lú ag tabhairt aghaidh ar An Mhí i gceann coicse sa Chraobhchomortas b'fhéidir go mbeidh a naire dírithe ar an ócáid sin. Mar sin féin moltar iad chun an cluiche seo a bhuachaint agus scanradh a chur ar Na Ríogaigh an mhí seo chugainn chomh maith.

COUNTER ATTRACTIONS

It may have been the fact that the campaign had been drastically shortened by the severe winter and the absence of the big names of the code, but the attendance at the 1947 league final between Derry and Clare was very poor indeed – a tiny 4,800, which was less than a quarter of the attendance at the previous year's decider.

The fact that the final was played on a Monday (Easter Monday) was undoubtedly a factor in the poor turnout, but on the same day there was an attendance of 16,000 at a tournament football game between Cavan and Kerry at Mitchum Stadium. That, of course, was a big occasion for the Irish in Britain, but even so the difference in the two attendances was truly remarkable.

But that wasn't the only occasion on which a National League final drew a smaller attendance than what would be considered a lesser event; the 1933 final between Meath and Cavan at Croke Park was watched by a crowd of 11,000 (then a record for a National League final) while on the same afternoon a crowd of 14,000 attended the Cork senior hurling final.

All of the above has a certain resonance with last weekend when the Heineken Cup Rugby clash had a profound effect on the attendances at the league finals. Indeed, the Division 2 final at Breffni Park attracted a considerably larger attendance than the premier decider at the Gaelic Grounds, but it wasn't the first time that the more prestigious event drew the smaller attendance.

PADDY CAMPBELL

The well-worn cliché of a game of two halves is very applicable to last week's gripping drawn Allianz National Football League Division II final between Donegal and Louth at Kingspan Breffni Park.

The opening half belonged to Louth. They played good football, dominated the exchanges, scored two goals and were well worth their interval lead of seven points.

There did not appear to be anyway back for the North West County as they lined out for the second half. But the introduction of wily Adrian Sweeney brought about a big improvement.

His good work in the full forward line boosted the Donegal work-rate and they steadily whittled down their deficit to get on level terms near the end and deservedly earn a second bite at the cherry.

Louth were very impressive in the opening half. Boosted by two early points from Christy Grimes, and good midfield play by Martin Farrelly and Paddy Keenan, they moved with flair and purpose.

Goals by Aaron Hoey after twenty two minutes and Mark Stanfield from a penalty coming up to the interval gave them what many felt was a match winning interval lead of 2-7 to 0-6.

Donegal, inspired by Sweeney, set about saving the day from the start of the second half. They steadily reduced their arrears and with the game fifty five minutes old they were right back in the title chase, just a point adrift.

Then, Louth got their game together again and a well-worked movement ended with Martin Farrelly collecting his side's third goal.

Many felt that score would put paid to the Donegal revival, but to their credit they continued to play with assurance and determination to earned a well-deserved draw -0-17 to Louth's 3-8.

GOOD PERFORMANCES

There were many good individual performances in the game. Sweeney deserves special mention as he brought new direction and power to Donegal and also finished their top scorer with four points.

Brendan Boyle and Neil Gallagher also contributed to the revival with their performances at midfield in the second half.

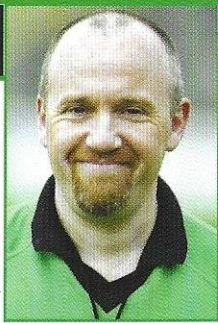

Farrelly led the way in the scoring review for Louth, while Hoey and Stanfield also made the most of their goal opportunities.

There were good performances in defence as well. Paddy Campbell at full back and Damien Diver did well for Donegal, while John O'Brien and Colin Goss had their moments for the Wee County.

This replay has the makings of a close encounter that should provide full value for money, and with the issue in doubt until the end.

Michael Doherty, who lost his place on top of the Allianz National Football League Division II top scoring national chart to Dessie Dolan (Westmeath) a few weeks back, moved back to the premier position last week.

He scored three points in Donegal's gripping draw with Louth at Kingspan Breffni Park an is now assured of finishing the top marksman for the season.

He has at 3-45 (54 points) a commanding lead of twenty two points over Louth's ace marksman, Darren Clarke, the only other marksman in the Top Ten in a position to improve his scoring record.

MEEHAN ON TOPINDIVIDUAL FEATS

The best returns in last weekend's finals were by Brian Sheehan (Kerry) who managed 0-5 against Galway and Martin Farrelly's 1-2 for Louth in their draw with Donegal. Neither, however, had any bearing on the chart which still reads as follows:

Michael Meehan
(Gaillimh)

Michael Meehan (Galway)	4-0	v Meath at Salthill
Michael Doherty (Donegal)	2-6	v Longford at Ballyshannon
Karol Mannion (Roscommon)	3-3	v Longford at Pearse Park

JAMIE CARR

TWO LEAGUES

One league campaign is considered enough – sometimes more than enough – for any county nowadays. But slightly more than 70 years ago Louth was one of a small number of counties that were involved in two league campaigns. This remarkable activity took place in the 1933/34 season when the Wee county, Meath, Cavan and Monaghan decided to organise what was called a four-county league, though not in opposition to the national competition. And it was hardly because of a lack of activity as Louth, Cavan and Meath were in the same National League group with Mayo and Galway. But Louth's endeavours reaped little reward as they failed to make an impression in either competition, recording just two wins in eight matches.

THE FIRST

It has long been forgotten by even the most diligent observer of the National League that the first draw and replay in the competition took place in the very first campaign – 1925/26 – and Donegal was one of the teams involved. Their opponents were Tyrone, and at Omagh on February 28th the teams finished level – Donegal 4-3, Tyrone 3-6. A fortnight later the teams met again at the same venue with Donegal emerging victorious by 4-4 to 2-3.

Although they failed to qualify for the final of the Ulster section of the league that year, the 1925/26 campaign saw Donegal record one of their most significant victories to that date – a first ever win over Cavan at Ballyshannon on a final scoreline of 0-6 to 0-3.

SIMILAR FOE...DIFFERENT OUTCOME

Prior to today's replay, it has been a number of years since Donegal and Louth have been involved in second meetings as is the nature with the National League. The Ulster side has to go back to the 1993 final with Dublin for their last replay as, having drawn with the Metropolitans at Croke Park (0-9 each), Donegal succumbed in the replay by 0-6 to 0-10.

Dublin also provided the opposition when Louth had their last replay in the league. In the 1969/70 season the counties, although not in the same division, were in the same section and a sectional play/off (semi/final) was set up as the method to see who would advance. At Croke Park the sides could not be separated (1-12 apiece), but when the action moved to An Uaimh a fortnight later the Wee county advanced by 0-10 to 0-8.

HUNGER HAS A THIRST

A RARE OCCURRENCE

Last weekend Louth became just the third county to score three goals in a National League final and fail to win the title. The first occasion this happened was in 1932 when Cork took on Kerry with the Leesiders notching 3-3, but still lost to the Kingdom's 5-2. Cork were again the victims when it happened for a second time in 1948. As with Louth last week, the Rebels scored three goals in forcing a 3-8 to 2-11 draw with Cavan, but lost the replay by 2-8 to 5-9. And the most recent occasion this rare phenomenon occurred was in 1958 when, despite scoring an impressive 3-8, Kildare were still five points shy of Dublin's 3-13. Of course, should the Wee county prevail in this afternoon's replay the three-goal statistic will be little more than that.

POINTING THE WAY

On just four occasions in this year's league was the 20-point barrier breached with Donegal managing it twice and Louth once. The Ulster side hit Carlow for 1-21 at Dr.Cullen Park on February 12th while they recorded the exact same total when defeating London at Ruislip a month later. On the fifth of March at Dundalk Louth registered 0-20 when defeating Sligo by eight points. The only other occasion the 20-point barrier was breached was when Westmeath notched 3-23 against Waterford at Mullingar on February 5th.

Twelve months ago the 20-point barrier was breached on five occasions with Monaghan managing it twice while Tyrone, Roscommon and Leitrim achieved it once.

Fairtrade and the GAA

It's just another good thing about the GAA. It's been brought to you by the pupils of Ballinure National School in county Tipperary. Products such as tea and coffee sold under the Fairtrade logo gives the farmers and workers of the third world a helping hand. Choosing these products makes sure they get a living wage for their work. Bonuses and constant prices, given by the Fairtrade companies they supply to, means they can invest in schools and health centres for themselves.

Following a project called "Fairtrade-Fair Play" and a request to management of Croke Park by the pupils of the senior classes of the school, Fairtrade tea and coffee is now available in a limited amount of outlets in the stadium.

If and when your county advances to Croke Park later this year make sure you and everyone else is a winner by seeking out and choosing the Fairtrade option.

If you are interested in learning more about the Fairtrade movement look up www.fairtrade.ie. Maybe you would think about being the driving force behind getting your clubhouse or your county ground being a Fairtrade venue!

PENALTY PARADE

The penalty awarded in last Sunday's encounter was the 27th in this year's league – two more than in last year's campaign. Mark Stanfield's successful conversion means that 19 goals and three points resulted from the 27 kicks leaving an average of 2.22 points per penalty, well ahead of last year's yield of 1.68 per spot kick.

WHEN LAST THEY MET2004 SLIGO 3-12 TYRONE 1-8

Two years ago Sligo and Tyrone clashed in the Division 3 Final and the Ulster side made the ideal start with Peter O'Connor's goal helping them into a 1-2 to 0-1 lead after 20 minutes. However, when Sligo's response came it was emphatic and two goals from penalties by Paul Seevers and another from play by Michael Gilmartin enabled the Westerners to turn over leading by 3-3 to 1-6. The momentum stayed with Sligo in the second period and they kept their opponents scoreless for all of 30 minutes, and with Seevers punishing any indiscretions at the other end, they ran out comfortable winners.

Sligo scorers: P.Seevers 2-7, M.Gilmartin 1-0, M.Burke 0-2, K.Raymond 0-1, J.Carroll 0-1, F.Cretaro 0-1.

SLIGO AND TYRONEIN KEEN BID FOR SHIELD TITLE

Sligo and Tyrone are capable of providing a keenly contested and entertaining game when they meet this evening in the Allianz National Hurling League Division III Shield final.

Tyrone displayed real character as well as skill when booking their place in the summit at the expense of Leitrim at Enniskillen two weeks ago.

After trailing for most of the game, they snatched a dramatic win in injury time. They won a free 70 yards from the Leitrim goal and left half back Shay O'Neill displayed coolness and accuracy by sending the ball over the bar to secure an 0-17 to 1-13 win.

part in the success by scoring seven points.

Sligo scored well in their convincing 2-22 to 4-7 semi-final win over Cavan at Carrick-on-Shannon two weeks ago.

After leading by a comfortable 0-16 to 0-4 at the interval, they were hit by a four goal Breffni County barrage in the second half but remained cool and finished on a high note with a brace of late goals.

Paul Seevers was a bright star for the Yeats County and contributed seven points to the success.

Both counties should get much encouragement from those semi-final performances and produce their best form to turn in some exciting passages of play.
